It For His Wife.

"Nobody can tell me about Tanlac, for I have tried it and know what it will do," said James Barry, 314 Albany Ave., Hartford, Conn., as he purchased a bottle of the medicine for Mrs. Barry.

"Last Spring, while working in the Ford plant in Detroit, I got so bad with indigestion that I was in misery days at a time. My food felt like lead in my stomach and I had terrible pains right below my ribs that went around my body. I was so weak I could not walk and I had to be helped. I would press into my chest and felt like a ton weight on my lungs. I kept getting worse all the time, and nothing seemed to help me.

"Well, I started on Tanlac and began to get well almost from the start. I now eat anything I want, have a fine appetite and have put on several pounds. I know hundreds in Detroit who got rid of their troubles taking Tanlac. It is the one medicine I am glad to recommend.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

CUSTOM OFFICERS SEIZE $6,000 WORTH OF WHISKEY AT FRANKLIN ST. PLACE

Custom officials in what was understood to be a search for liquor alleged to have been smuggled in the United States made a descent on Norwich about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and seized about $6,000 worth of whiskey that was found in the building used as a barn and garage in the rear of the beverage place at 78 Franklin street conducted by William E. and John H. Wilson.

The searching party consisted of Customs Agent E. R. Norwood and Inspector O. H. Hennessey of New York city and Inspector Jeremiah Dillon of New London, with Federal Prohibition Officers Robert Church of this city and Joseph Fitzgerald of New London. They first visited the store, where they found J. H. Wilson in charge. Upon showing their authority they made a search of the place and then told Mr. Wilson to show them the building in the rear.

Nothing was found on the second floor, but when the room on the main floor was opened up the whiskey that it is understood the officers were looking for was found.

There were 55 cases marked Canadian Club and a case and a half of domestic stuff marked Hill & Hill, 1,600 cases. The cases were to be marked Nassau, Havana. Besides the whiskey, 26 quarts of wine were found and seized by the officers.

The seized goods were loaded on to a motor truck and held in a Bath street garage until they were taken later in the afternoon to the custom house in New London. At the request of the custom house officials to guard the liquor while it was in the garage, Chief George Linton sent Officer Matthew Delaney to the garage until the truck departed with the liquor.

The two Wilson brothers were brought before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson at his office in the Thayer building, where they were held, awaiting the hearing on their possession with intent to sell, and also with having in their possession goods smuggled into the country contrary to law.

Attorneys William H. Shields, Jr., and Thomas J. Kelly, who appeared with the brothers, had a hearing on Wednesday and Commissioner Mathewson found probable cause and bound the two men over to the United States district court. Bonds for each were placed at $2,500, which were furnished.

It is understood that the custom officials claim the whiskey seized is part of a shipment delivered in this country by the tug William C. Bickel and that they have been at work on the case for the last two weeks. The suspected tug was New London on Saturday, May 13, and it is understood it is now held in New York. No information was forthcoming as to where the men were when the seized goods reached Norwich.

The custom officials also searched the Del Hotel on Broadway but found no whiskey there.

DEALER CUTS GASOLINE PRICE IN NEW LONDON

A gasoline war is on in New London. One dealer has decided to cut the price of gasoline to meet the competition. The dealer who recently installed a 1,000 gallon tank so that he could break the high price, which prevails in New London, has announced a cut of two cents a gallon at 5 o'clock Wednesday.

For the past week he has been selling gasoline at one cent under the other dealers who asked him to come up a cent and meet their price. Instead of doing that he told them that he was going down another cent, and instead of having to pay 31 cents the fluid may be bought there now at 29 cents.

This dealer said that he was warned when he installed his big tank that if he undertook to cut the retail price he would not be able to buy gas from any of the big oil companies.

He has now decided to try concluding with the four oil companies and will probably meet with a real fight. The wholesalers will probably meet his figures it is believed and if so the public will have him to thank instead of the four big oil companies.

A meeting of the New London Automobile Dealers association was held on Wednesday noon and City manager Bartlett and Councilman Clark were present. The automobile dealers association proposes to back up the dealer in his effort to get a lower price for the public of New London and has secured the moral support of the city manager and some members of the city council. The latter, it is understood, proposes to take some definite action on the subject.

There has been two to three cents higher in New London which is always has been from some other Connecticut cities. Gasoline prices in Norwich are now at 30 and 31 cents.

DEFENSE TESTIMONY IN CONTESTED DIVORCE CASE

Defense testimony in a contested divorce suit of Ralph L. Main vs. Sadie Taylor Main of North Stonington was introduced here Wednesday in the continuation of the trial of the case before Judge James H. Webb in the court of the county of New London. The divorce was brought on the grounds of intolerable cruelty to which there was an amended complaint alleging adultery.

Attorney Roderick M. Douglas, counsel for Mrs. Main, first put on the stand Edward A. Harris, auditor of the Shore Line trolley road, and then Mr. M. M. Torman Lloyd C. Taylor was not operating the trolley car on a night when Mrs. Clara Bromley Murphy had testified she saw Mrs. Taylor and this motor man in a compromising position.

With whom Mrs. Murphy said she had seen Mrs. Taylor in a compromising position on a trolley car, a compromising position was put in the stand and testified that he was not in the employ of the trolley car company. He was a trolley car driver in another city in the state. Three witnesses, Edgar W. Chapman, Charles W. Brown and Dr. Thurman P. Main, testified that Mrs. Murphy was of poor reputation as to truth and veracity.

Main added that her mentality was about that of a ten-year-old child. Other witnesses were Ethel A. Pickering, George Pickering, Mary Taylor and Hattie Collins.

Rebuttal witnesses brought on by Attorney Roche were the plaintiff's wife, Helen E. Edwards and her sister, Mrs. E. Edwards. Mrs. Edwards was called at 1:33 p. m. and Judge Webb reserved decision after hearing the arguments by Attorneys Roche and Douglas.

Anderson Divorce Suit ON TRIAL IN COURT

In the superior court here late Wednesday afternoon, Judge James H. Webb started to hear the evidence in the contested divorce suit of Matilda Ethel Anderson, now of New York, against Martin G. Anderson of this city, in which Mrs. Anderson asks divorce on the grounds of intolerable cruelty. Her maiden name was Garceau and they were married in Feb., 1915, and have one child, a boy, now 5 years old.

Mr. J. H. Douglas is counsel for the wife and Attorney Charles L. Stewart for the husband.

Mrs. Anderson testified that immediately after their marriage they went to live in New York with her husband's uncle. The cruel treatment started there when he would pull her off the lounge by her hair every night and jump on her. They lived there six weeks and lived for three months at her father's in Franklin.

Here her husband would slap her in the face and once held her by her wrists in her room to keep her from going down stairs. Later they lived with her sister in Franklin. She testified that when she and her husband's board and he worked in the mill where he got $3 a week. Here he scratched and kicked her and when she later moved to Plymouth he tore the clothes off her back several times. The trouble started, Mrs. Anderson said, over foolish little arguments. He wanted his own way and said he had always been that way.

Later they lived in the Wheeler place in Borrah. She took in washing and her husband worked in the mill. He continued his treatment of her in pulling her hair, slapping her face and tearing her clothes. She testified that she had been in the mill where he worked for a long time. At one time while living there she worked in the Marlborough shop and earned $30 a week, while he was at the mill. She testified that she was paid $15. He continued his cruel treatment in the same line as before, she said, and she testified to working on the Anderson farm in Moberg park during the summer. She said she was worked in the hayfield and canned vegetables for the Anderson family and herself. This was at a time when her husband had no work.

Court adjourned with Mrs. Anderson still on the stand and the trial will be continued today (Thursday).

CONNECTICUT CO. IS TO PAY OVERDUE TAXES

Semi-official information to the effect that the Connecticut company is to pay a payment of from $150,000 to $200,000, in back taxes was received at the state capital as welcome news. While no official information has been received from the state treasurer that the money is forthcoming there is an air of expectancy that the state is soon to be enriched to the extent of more than $150,000 from a million and even that will be most welcome.

There is due to the state of Connecticut from the Connecticut Co. in back taxes approximately $1,250,000, and if payment is made it will be a great relief to the indebtedness of the Connecticut Co. to about an even million. The suggestion that the Connecticut Co. was about ready to make a payment of $1,250,000 to the state was made at the annual banquet of the Connecticut chamber of commerce at the Hotel Bond last Thursday evening when J. S. Storrs of the Connecticut Co. was the guest of honor.

The driver of the southbound car did not stop to learn the damage done and Ned Hall, also of Norwich, who came along just after the accident, took up the case to learn the damage done and Ned Hall, also of Norwich, who came along just after the accident, took up the case to learn the damage done and Ned Hall, also of Norwich, who came along just after the accident, took up the case to learn the damage done.

REGISTERED MANY HITS

The roaring of the big guns off New London during the past week recalled war times. It is really but the arming target practice of the regulars at Forts Wright, Terry and Michie.

The coast artillery district commander, General Mark L. Hersey, was well pleased with the manner in which the practice with the big guns was conducted. Hit after hit was registered on the target which was a mere speck on the horizon at the longest range.

One of the interesting features was the control of the movement of the tug towing the targets by means of radio telephone.

The shooting was excellent.

Their garrison is now recruiting to fill 250 vacancies, which remain. Men who enlist now go into training for the fall target practice.

A large percentage of the troops are citizens of Connecticut and in every city and town, soldiers are being enlisted to strengthen company baseball and track teams.

There are six companies at each of the larger post and much interest centers in the inter-company baseball league.
